History: Back in 1946, Prince Alfonso von Hohenlohe acquired Finca Santa Margarita, a 120.000 m² (1.291.668 sq. ft.) estate with olive trees and vineyards by the Mediterranean, and converted it into his private residence. Due to the large size of his family and the numerous visitors he often hosted to, Finca Santa Margarita was gradually enlarged. Prince Alfonso von Hohenlohe was keen on architecture and landscaping, and his definition of luxury was a "blend of privacy and gardens". Over the years, this vision became what is nowadays known as the Marbella Club Hotel, and meeting point for international prominence and Jet set. It was Prince Alfonso von Hohenlohe's dream to transform his family residence into an exclusive Club, once of 20 rooms, today known as the Marbella Club Hotel · Golf Resort & Spa one of The Leading Small Hotels of the World.
